Company presentation

We have produced stockings since 1957, but for several years we have been producing almost exclusively sanitary and paramedical products.

Cizeta was founded in 1978 to deal exclusively with exportation, and today exports all over Europe and the rest of the world.

In recent years we have also specialized in sanitary textiles, and we now produce stockings for diabetics, gradual compression stockings and pantyhose (including maternity), seamless anti-cellulite underclothes and an entire line handmade with Angora wool.

We also produce more specific paramedical products, such as sanitary underwear and incontinence underwear for adults, support corsets for ribs, and anti-embolism knee highs and stockings.

We also have a full line of compression garments to support Lipedema, Lymphedema diseases.

For years we have distributed our products to noted suppliers in Italy and abroad.
We have recently decided to promote ourselves with our name brand

The logo for CzSalus features the word "CzSalus" in a sans-serif font. The "Cz" is in red and "Salus" is in blue. A registered trademark symbol (®) is located to the upper right of the "s" in "Salus".

Directly in the Italian and foreign health and paramedical market.

For manufacturing our products we employ the most technologically advanced textile fibers available, such as those with silver, carbon, bioceramics, and F.I.R. (far infrared rays) united with the most ecological and advanced finishing treatments, thus allowing our products to bear the EC trademark and our company to be certified ISO 9002 as of the beginning of 1998, as you can see and we are now certified UNI EN ISO 9001:2015 and UNI CEI EN ISO 13485:2021.

Angora Line

What is Angora wool?

Angora wool is derived from spinning the fur of the Angora rabbit; the rabbit is not killed, but just sheared and combed to collect its fur. This wool is characterized by a notable slipperiness, and is soft and shiny with a strong sensation of warmth. Angora rabbits were the favored animals of emperors and kings. The race is thought to have originated in Turkey. The French nobility also loved it, where it was introduced in 1723. This wool is characterized by a warmth of up to six times that of normal wool, and is very useful for warming the human body; the joints, such as the knees, elbows and spinal cord in particular. This is the reason for our choice to put Angora wool in all of our “warmers” line, “Angora warmers” as the English name suggests, which we offer at a reasonable price!

On the following page you will find an article published by an influential newspaper, which speaks of an ever-increasing interest in Angora wool in recent years.

Luxury textiles industry: Australian research is now aiming towards Angora rabbits

March 7th, 2002

A new luxury textiles industry could soon come into being in Australia, utilizing fibers originating from rabbits, as opposed to sheep

Angora fiber is considered to be one of the best and most esteemed in the world. As with Angora goats, which produce mohair, Angora rabbits, originating in Turkey, produce a soft and esteemed fiber that measures between 10 and 12 microns.

"Angora rabbits are one of the oldest domesticated animals" – says Dr. Tony Schlink of the Australian research center CSIRO, which has taken on the research for the Rural Industries Research and Development Corporation. "They are larger than average and their fur grows three or four inches in height at every shearing". Angora fiber is mixed with superfine wool, mohair, silk and alpaca to produce fashionable clothing garments and very warm underclothes. Collecting Angora fiber does not cause any harm to the animal. The rabbits are sheared for the first time when they are two months old. The rabbits are then sheared every three months, and provide about 250 grams of Angora. Dr. Schlink believes that Angora from rabbits has the potential to become a "boutique fiber" in the Australian wool industry. "Seeing as the rabbits must be sheared four times a year, labor costs are an important factor in their production," the researcher adds.

Anti-cellulite Line

First of all, what is cellulite?

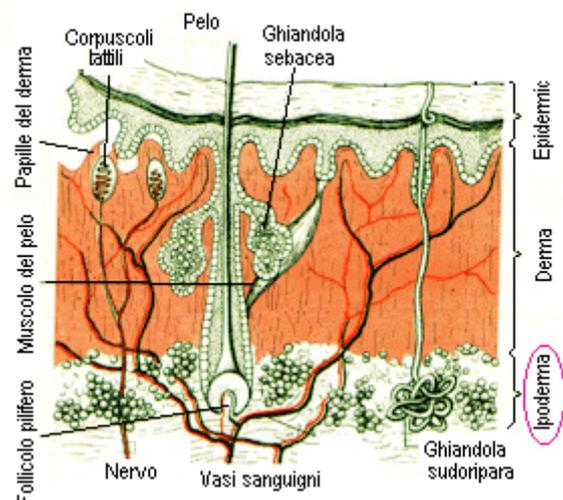

The dictionary defines cellulite as: "Pathological accumulation of adipose tissue and water in the tissue under the skin, and the consequential external deformity". This pathological deformity has always been a characteristic of the female body; what has changed significantly over the years is the prevailing attitude towards cellulite. During the 16th and 17th century, for example, shapely, prosperous women (with a significant quantity of cellulite) were considered the most attractive and feminine. In our times, marked by a powerful preoccupation for a slim figure and physical fitness, cellulite has become enemy number one for women, who undergo treatments of all kinds, from cosmetic to surgical, to defeat it. To avoid arriving at solutions as drastic as surgery and to avoid an irreversible level of cellulite, it is necessary to use adequate prevention, by way of a union between diet and constant physical activity.

Water Retention

The problems of cellulite and water retention (the accumulation of water in the tissues of the body) are closely connected, such that it is true that the same type of diet can resolve these two problems. It is important to remember that in our bodies there are three different types of circulation: arterial, venous and lymphatic. It is the duty of arterial circulation to transport blood purified by the liver and the lungs throughout the body, nourishing and oxygenating tissues. The purpose of venous circulation is to collect blood already used by the body's tissues, so full of toxins, and transport it to the liver and lungs where it is "cleaned". Lymphatic circulation's purpose is made up of a network of tiny canals that transport lymphatic liquids. These liquids are full of waste that must be eliminated, passing first through the venous vessels of the chest, and then to the kidneys and liver. That being said, the development of cellulite can be broken down into three phases.

Cellulite is therefore a problem involving the hypodermis, a tissue that is found directly beneath the dermis by nature mainly adipose. It is an active tissue due to the intercurrent link between its metabolism and caloric balance. Its activity manifests itself with a lipolytic function, which provokes a loss of fat when the caloric balance is negative; or with liposynthesis that activates the deposit of fats, when the caloric balance is positive. This constitutes the body's energy reserves.

The panniculus adiposus distributes itself in a different way in each of the two sexes: in women it is more accentuated in the lower part of the body, the zone presenting a particular sensibility to the effects of estrogen and progesterone, the typical female hormones. A woman, even if slim, tends to present adipose accumulations around the thighs. Men present an adipose accumulation in the abdominal and visceral areas ("pot belly").

ANTI-CELLULITE REMEDIES

MASSAGE

One of the classic interventions is massage, which is shown to be a valid remedy due to its stimulating effect on the localized blood circulation, its improving effect on cutaneous trophism and its effect on cellular oxygenation. An expert must perform massage, or it can be dangerous, especially if the massage is too energetic and is performed on patients presenting fragile capillaries. An ideal combination is to do two classic massages twice a week for a month and lymphodrainage. This technique is able to free cellulite tissues of excess liquids and toxins that stagnate in the subcutaneous connecting tissues, facilitating drainage through lymphatic connectors and annexed glandular stations. This massage can be performed manually or mechanically. Lymphodrainage is very effective, but must be performed by expert hands and by personnel that have expert knowledge of the lymphatic system in the body. This massage allows for an immediate reduction of the circumference of the treatment zone and the skin assumes a rosy color due to improved oxygenation.

AN OPTIMAL SOLUTION

Therefore, cellulite can be reduced, even without surgery, by adopting a more balanced diet, doing regular physical activity, specific treatments and above all massage. Here, our line of anti-cellulite products can be of significant help in combatting enemy number one of the women of today. A complete line of shorts, mid-length and long pants and a massaging undershirt produced with SEAMLESS technology (without bothersome side seams). The undershirt can also be worn in the summer as an elegant cami under a jacket.

Wearing a complete set of undershirt+pants, you can reap the following benefits in a few days:

- ✓ An improved silhouette immediately, thanks to the extremely elastic compressed fabric.
- ✓ A marked sense of relief for those who suffer from back pain, thanks to the lumbar support.
- ✓ The continuous massage, resulting from the molded elastic fabric and your body's movement, stimulates capillary microcirculation, facilitating the drainage of retained liquids that are the cause of cellulite.

Treatment MOSQUITO STOP

WHY DEET?

Come points more often by mosquitoes than the others? The reason is the smell you emit. Mosquitoes have in fact a very strong sense of smell, which is used to identify targets to be pricked, and some individuals have a body odor more "palatable" than the others. "Mosquitoes are attracted by Nonanal, a substance emitted by humans, but also by birds, other typical prey of the common mosquitoes," said Syed Zainulabeuddin, a biologist at the University of Notre Dame's Eck Institute for Global Health in the United States that studies the olfactory receptors of these annoying insects. "A good part of the brain and the mosquitoes' olfactory centers dedicated to. Females have a recognition system developed very Nonanal located on their antennae," said Syed scienceblog to the site. "We also found that some substances derived from plants, such as DEET, commonly used in creams repellents are very effective to drive away mosquitoes. However - he continued - first it was believed that DEET was acting only masking the odor of the human body to mosquitoes: Our laboratory has discovered that mosquitoes instead recognize the smell of DEET as such and actively shun. This discovery there can 'help in developing strategies more' effective to ward off mosquitoes, particularly in areas where there are widespread virus transmitted by the bite, such as West Nile Virus. " DEET was used for the first time in the Pacific War by the Americans to defend the soldiers from attack by swarms of mosquitoes. Nowadays, improved, is0 the most widely used product to guard against the annoying insect. We I will propose a treatment with microcapsules fixed on your garment ensuring their anti-insect activity for at least 15 washes, it means, with two garments, all summer period protected from the insect! Not suitable for children under 12y.

Aloe & green Tea treatment

Here, our line of anti-cellulite products can be of significant help in combatting enemy number one of the women of today. This model is treated with microcapsules containing ALOE VERA+GREEN TEA, the first notes for purifying and soothing the skin, the latter because, in addition to being a useful fat burner to lose weight, it is a powerful antioxidant against free radicals that are the cause of the aging of the skin. Both substances are useful to promote a healthy tan.

ALOE+GREEN TEA + MICRO MASSAGE + COMPRESSION = maximum draining, purifying effect = less CELLULITE.

ALOE VERA:

1. Aloe Vera Is High in Vitamins & Minerals:

Aloe Vera contains many vitamins including A, C, E, folic acid, choline, B1, B2, B3 (niacin), B6. Aloe Vera is also one of the few plants that contains vitamin B12.

Some of the 20 minerals found in Aloe Vera include: calcium, magnesium, zinc, chromium, selenium, sodium, iron, potassium, copper, manganese.

2. Aloe Vera is High in Amino Acids & Fatty Acids

Amino acids are the building blocks of protein. There are about 22 amino acids that are necessary for the human body and it is said that 8 of these are essential. Estimates of the amino acids found in aloe range from 18-20 amino acids, with all 8 essential amino acids.

Aloe Vera also includes quite an impressive range of fatty acids. Aloe contains three plant sterols, which are important fatty acids- HCL cholesterol (which lowers fats in the blood), campesterol, and B-sitosterol. All are helpful in reducing symptoms of allergies and acid indigestion. Other fatty acids include linoleic, linolenic, myristic, caprylic, oleic, palmitic, and stearic.

3. Aloe Vera is an Adaptogen

Aloe Vera is a well-known adaptogen. An adaptogen is something that boosts the body's natural ability to adapt to external changes and resist illness. It is thought that aloe's power as an adaptogen balances the body's system, stimulating the defense and adaptive mechanisms of the body. This allows you an increased ability to cope with stress (physical, emotional and environmental stress like pollution)

4. Aloe Helps with Digestion

Poor digestion is related to many diseases. A properly functioning digestive tract is one of the keys and foundations of health. Aloe is known to soothe and cleanse the digestive tract and help improve digestion. The interesting thing about taking aloe internally is that, because it is an adaptogen, it helps with either constipation or diarrhea, helping to regulate your elimination cycles in whatever way you need. It's been a great remedy for people with problems such as irritable bowel syndrome as well as acid reflux. Aloe also helps to decrease the amount of unfriendly bacteria and in our gut keeping your healthy intestinal flora in balance. Aloe is also a vermifuge, which means it helps to rid the body of intestinal worms.

5. Aloe Helps in Detoxification

Aloe Vera is a gelatinous plant food, just like seaweeds and chia. The main benefit to consuming gelatinous plant foods in your diet is that these gels move through the intestinal tract absorbing toxins along the way and get eliminated through the colon. This will help the proper elimination of waste from your body and help the detoxification of your body.

6. Aloe Alkalizes the Body

Disease cannot manifest in an alkaline environment. Most people are living and subsisting on mostly acidic foods. For great health, remember the 80/20 rule – 80% alkaline forming foods and 20% acidic. Aloe vera is an alkaline forming food. It alkalizes the body, helping to balance overly acidic dietary habits

7. Cardiovascular Health

There hasn't been a lot of studies conducted in this but there has been some research to show that Aloe Vera extract injected into the blood, greatly multiplies the oxygen transportation and diffusion capabilities of the red blood cells.

According to a study published in the 2000 issue of the British Medical Journal, beta sitosterol helps to lower cholesterol. By regulating blood pressure, improving circulation and oxidation of the blood, lowering cholesterol, and making blood less sticky, Aloe Vera juice may be able to help lower the risk of heart disease.

8. Aloe Helps Boost the Immune System

I think given the stresses of our daily lives, every one can use a boost to their immune systems. The polysaccharides in aloe vera juice stimulate macrophages, which are the white blood cells of your immune system that fight against viruses.

Aloe is also an immune enhancer because of its high level of anti-oxidants, which help combat the unstable compounds known as free-radicals, contributing to the aging process. (Free radicals are a by-product of life itself, it is a naturally occurring process but we can overload ourselves with unnecessary free-radicals by living an unhealthy lifestyle) Aloe is also an antipyretic which means it is used to reduce or prevent fever.

9. Aloe Vera is Great for the Skin

Because of aloe's well-known healing properties for the skin, aloe is one of the primary compounds used in the cosmetic industry. It is a known vulnerary, (meaning it helps heal wounds) and is great for applying topically to burns, abrasions, psoriasis and even to bug bites. Aloe acts as an analgesic, acting to help relieve pain of wounds. It's feels especially good to cut a stem of aloe, place it in the fridge and rub it on sun burnt skin – the immediate soothing effect feels like an absolute lifesaver. Aloe is also an antipruritic: A substance that relieves or prevents itching. Aloe Vera is an astringent: which causes the contraction of body tissues, typically used to reduce bleeding from minor abrasions.

Due to aloe's high water content (over 99% water) it is a great way to hydrate, moisturize and rejuvenate the skin and fits within my general guideline: "Don't put anything on your skin that you wouldn't eat!" Aloe increases the elasticity of the skin making it more flexible through collagen and elastin repair. Aloe is an emollient, helping to soften and soothe the skin. It helps supply oxygen to the skin cells, increasing the strength and synthesis of skin tissue and induces improved blood flow to the skin through capillary dilation.

10. Disinfectant, Anti-biotic, Anti-microbial, Germicidal, Anti-bacterial, Anti-septic, Anti-fungal & Anti-viral:

Wow, I think that covers all anti- bases. Okay, I admit, that was just a sneaky way to add in another 8 good reasons why you should keep Aloe Vera handy and incorporate it into your lifestyle. Aloe Vera's active ingredients are sulphur, lupeol, salicylic acid, cinnamic acid, urea nitrogen and phenol which are substances that prevent the growth of disease-causing microorganisms and act as a team to provide antimicrobial activity thus eliminating many internal and external infections, also active against bacteria. It also helps to treat fungal and viral infections.

11. Aloe Helps Reduce Inflammation

Aloe Vera contains 12 substances, including B-sisterole, which can help to slow down or inhibit inflammation. This may be able to help with painful joints due to stiffness and help improve joint flexibility.

12. Weight Loss – A Secondary effect

Improving your digestion, and detoxifying your will have a secondary effect in promoting weight loss because when we start to improve our digestion we naturally eliminate more efficiently, which is a primary way they we detoxify – through our bowels. This will lighten our toxic load on the body and will give us more energy.

Aloe Vera Intake Precautions

This plant is incredibly medicinal, yet there are some cautions against long-term use. Just because a little is beneficial, doesn't mean that a lot is more beneficial. This is an incredibly potent herb and should be used with a level of respect for its potency. Long-term use can lead to loss of electrolytes, especially potassium.

Avoid taking aloe internally during pregnancy, menstruation, if you have hemorrhoids or degeneration of the liver and gall bladder.

GREEN TEA:

1. Weight Loss. Green tea increases the metabolism. The polyphenol found in green tea works to intensify levels of fat oxidation and the rate at which your body turns food into calories.
2. Diabetes. Green tea apparently helps regulate glucose levels slowing the rise of blood sugar after eating. This can prevent high insulin spikes and resulting fat storage.
3. Heart Disease. Scientists think, green tea works on the lining of blood vessels, helping keep them stay relaxed and better able to withstand changes in blood pressure. It may also protect against the formation of clots, which are the primary cause of heart attacks.
4. Esophageal Cancer. It can reduce the risk of esophageal cancer, but it is also widely thought to kill cancer cells in general without damaging the healthy tissue around them.
5. Cholesterol. Green tea reduces bad cholesterol in the blood and improves the ratio of good cholesterol to bad cholesterol.
6. Alzheimer's and Parkinson's. It is said to delay the deterioration caused by Alzheimer's and Parkinson's. Studies carried out on mice showed that green tea protected brain cells from dying and restored damaged brain cells.
7. Tooth Decay. Studies suggests that the chemical antioxidant "catechin" in tea can destroy bacteria and viruses that cause throat infections, dental caries and other dental conditions
8. Blood Pressure. Regular consumption of green tea is thought to reduce the risk of high blood pressure.
9. Depression. Theanine is an amino acid naturally found in tea leaves. It is this substance that is thought to provide a relaxing and tranquilizing effect and be a great benefit to tea drinkers.
10. Anti-viral and Anti-bacterial. Tea catechins are strong antibacterial and antiviral agents which make them effective for treating everything from influenza to cancer. In some studies green tea has been shown to inhibit the spread of many diseases.
11. Skincare. Green tea can apparently also help with wrinkles and the signs of aging, This is because of their antioxidant and anti-inflammatory activities. Both animal and human studies have demonstrated that green tea applied topically can reduce sun damage.

Wearing a complete set of undershirt+pants, you can reap the following benefits in a few days:

- 1) An improved silhouette immediately, thanks to the extremely elastic compressed fabric.
- 2) A marked sense of relief for those who suffer from back pain, thanks to the lumbar support.
- 3) The continuous massage, resulting from the molded elastic fabric and your body's movement, stimulates capillary microcirculation, facilitating the drainage of retained liquids that are the cause of cellulite.

Lymphedema & lipedema

This department, created with the cooperation of the Swedish specialist doctor Tim Kvick, is dedicated to specific compression garments to treat, to minimize those lymphatic diseases; the problems due to the inconvenience caused by lymphedema and lipoedema. You will find compression vests with and without sleeves and leggings even up under the foot with high compression that together with the passive massage created from the particular fabrics with your body movement, helps the lymphatic system to drain fluids and to have easily an active life. Lymphedema & lipoedema, which, in some stages of the disease, may be confused, however, for either can be very useful our specific compression garments that in some cases are identical for both dysfunctions.

EMANA technological fibre

Shape your body! with NEW TECHNOLOGY EMANA®

Heads made of a special polyamide fiber can reduce muscle fatigue and the signs of cellulite. Emana absorbs infrared radiation emitted by human body and re-emits the absorbed radiation as far infrared (FIR) wave which interacts with human body promoting the body stimulation and a natural warmth. They are the result of a search 4 years long are made with a the special yarn “Emana ®”, which incorporates in its polymeric matrix bioactive mineral, crystals giving the possibility of developing an elevated level of interaction between the tissue and your skin, improving blood microcirculation and cell metabolism, helping thus to reduce the signs of cellulite and sport action. Tested by scientific studies, garments made with “Emana ®” offer many benefits, such as:

- Increased synthesis of collagen to make your skin healthier, softer and younger
- increases the elasticity of the skin by reducing the signs of cellulite
- delay in fatigue and better muscle oxygenation during sports activities
- promotes a sense of warmth, comfort and wellbeing

It is a product whose characteristics do not vary even after numerous washings (permanent effect), it is easy to wash and dry as nylon tights.

Elastic pantyhose for women especially conceived to alleviate and prevent light swelling of the lower limbs due to fatigue and in many cases due to slight vascular dysfunction or activities leading to long hours standing up or sedentary. The esteemed yarns, their weaving with modern machinery and their avant-garde assembly guarantee:

- ✓ SOFTNESS
- ✓ EASY WEARING
- ✓ TOLLERATED EVEN BY SENSITIVE SKIN, WITH POST PHLEBITIS PHLOGOSIS, OR SCLEROTIC SKIN
- ✓ ASSURANCE OVER TIME OF THE CHOSEN COMPRESSION

Pantyhose CzSalus, thanks to their continuous, beneficial, gradual massage from the bottom towards the top can definitely be of help for circulation problems and to prevent and/or alleviate heaviness and swelling of the legs.

Dr. Renato Moroni, specialist in this area affirms: "Wearing CzSalus pantyhose, thanks to the compression applied to the entire lower limb with decreasing values from the ankle to the thigh, and thanks to a constant massage, can invert the level of venous blood pressure "thigh/ankle", facilitating venous and lymphatic return and curing the consequences of circulatory stagnation. They are especially indicated for people who, even though healthy, have a sedentary lifestyle, as in long-haul international flights."
